

Cleaning up!

If you get ink on your hands then first, wash thoroughly in warm soapy water. If this doesn't remove the stains you could try a very small amount Spray & Wipe. However, we find that a good wash at the time of the spill, then wash the dishes at dinner and by the time you wash the breakfast dishes it is gone giving the Dishwasher a well earned rest.

We always suggest you cover your work area (preferably a stainless steel sink bench) with newspaper. If you do make a spill then use your normal cleaner as soon as possible and the ink will come off.

We also suggest you wear old clothes or a vinyl apron when refilling. If you do have a spill, rub the stain under the cold water tap immediately to remove as much of the ink as possible. This may take 15 minutes or longer. If the fabric is normally washed in the washing machine, wash it in a cold water cycle immediately. If the clothing item is normally dry-cleaned, tell your dry cleaner that the ink is a water-soluble dye with ethylene glycol added.
